

This architectural floor plan illustrates the layout of a restaurant, divided into several functional zones. The plan includes a large central dining area with circular tables, a bar area with a curved bar and stools, a kitchen area with a long counter and equipment, and a service area with a long counter and stools. The plan also shows a large oval-shaped area, possibly a stage or a large table, and a large rectangular area, possibly a stage or a large table. The plan is detailed with dimensions, room numbers, and furniture placement. The overall layout is designed to optimize the use of space and ensure efficient service flow.
